Make Every Day Earth Day

Did you know? Rachel Carson's efforts to raise awareness about the pesticide DDT in her landmark book, Silent Spring, led the way for the first Earth Day in 1970 (celebrated now on April 22 each year).

Miss this year's Fifth Annual Hekman Library Disc Golf Tournament?

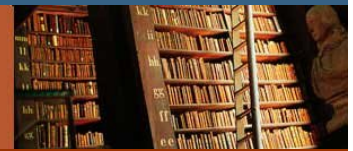

Don't worry—catch it next year in early March. Or take advantage of the spring weather to play outside!

Disc Golf Fact:

“The first known instance of anyone playing golf with a flying disc occurred in Vancouver BC in 1926.”

ReferenceUniverse™

One of Hekman Library's newest research resources is Reference Universe. Reference Universe enables users to search the local reference collection, print and electronic, down to the article and index level--something WebCat is not designed to do. It contains more than 20 million citations to 20,000 reference works. One can search local holdings only or the wider database, which includes holdings from all libraries that have implemented Reference Universe.

A search for “environmentalism” in Reference Universe returns 84 entries from our local reference collection, including these entries on a range of related topics:
